THE INCREASE IN DIVORCES

IN WESTERN INDIANA THEY ARE BECOMING VERY COMMON.

The Record in Parke and Other Counties—Estimate of the Suits in the Entire State.

Chicago, October 22.—The Tribune says: While certain well-defined reasons govern all other trades, fixing their locations and establishing their centers, those of the divorce industry seem to be as migratory as a strong-legged tramp and as uncertain as the marlin in a roving sea. Indiana was the first State which recognized the possibilities of mutual profit between suitors and residents in lax divorce laws, and for a long time had a monopoly of the business. Then the law of Illinois was amended so that the marriage bonds could be more easily untied, and Chicago had quite a boom. Its advantages as a place of residence during the year of waiting were quickly recognized. But lately the Dakotas, Wyoming and Oklahoma offered inducements to persons seeking a divorce, and another to hold it, and so much fault has been found with the divorce courts offered on Western bargain counters that their custom is being lost to Indiana. Indiana's trade is looking up again, with every prospect of an increasing and well-patented business.

On the September docket of the Parke county (Ind.) Circuit Court, just ended, the divorce cases were one-eighth the entire number of cases set for trial. In Clay county there were thirty-eight divorce cases tried during the September term, and in Vigo county there were twenty times as many as in Parke. There are already five cases filed for the November docket in Parke county. For the February term of this year there were seven while six divorce suits found places on the April docket, making a total of twenty-nine in the Parke county courts thus far this year.

The records in the clerk's office for November show forty divorces during the year. In the 1929 docket this record sinks into insignificance. The divorce suits tried there being forty-nine of them for divorce, or nearly one-third of the entire list of cases. The February term put six of them, April eleven, September fourteen more dissatisfied couples wanted to be released. The divorce business in Indiana is not only in its infancy in 1930, and in 1929 it only brought up sixteen cases during the year, September, with seven petitions, being the heaviest month.

With twenty-nine divorces on record in Parke county during the last divorce year 1929 will outstrip all its predecessors before it gives up the fight on December 31. In the Parke county docket for the September term of court has closed, comes the report of an amazing number of divorces. The population of the county is equal to one one-hundredth of the population of the State of Indiana. Taking the divorce business for the State as a whole, it means that there were 1,100 divorce suits on trial in the Indiana September courts just closed.

They represent 2,200 parties to the suit—an army big enough to defend the State from any military invasion. If this great company of disappointed mortals could get together in a kind of refitting school, with six little Cupids as the instructor, it is believed fully eight hundred new couples could be made from the old 1,100 divorces and mitts.

Upon investigation it is found that the common method of procuring a divorce in western Indiana is to have the clerk of the court make out a notice of non-residence. The fee for this process belongs to the clerk, but it happens that three times out of five he never gets it, and it is also a fact that nearly all divorces are worked along through the clerk's office. The clerk, or the complainant, or the attorney asks the clerk for the papers, he has no choice but to give them, and in many cases the clerk's office is ready for a hearing. Next a notice is taken to the printing office of a paper of general circulation, and the editor is asked to print it four successive times. The attorney then convenes the attorney asks the same editor for a statement showing the notice to have been printed four times, which statement is given the court.

Here the head-battering process comes in, and the Parke county papers have begun a crusade against the practice, claiming that not one out of four of these divorce complaints ever pay for the publication of the notice. They say that heretofore notices must be paid for before they will testify to their having appeared, which testimony is absolutely essential to every granting of a divorce. The attorneys are also stating that of the two to twenty divorces granted by the Circuit Court, not more than half of them are paid for. And still further the court officials are getting a little weary of this divorce business on the ground that it is largely due to these divorce suits that so much other important court matters must be subjected to sundry docketing and, in many cases, held over from term to term owing to the lack of time to hold it.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC.

Mr. Huntington Says It Can Not Pay Its Government Debt.

San Francisco, Cal., October 22.—C. P. Huntington says that the Central Pacific will not be able to pay its Government debt on maturity. Therefore, if Congress will not agree to some settlement of the debt, on a basis compatible with the financial ability of the Central Pacific to meet the obligation, he has no objection to the United States Government taking possession of the property. He does not seem at all perturbed at the character of the Washington dispatches of the past two days. He said: "I have always said that the Central Pacific will not be able to pay its Government debt on maturity. It simply can not do it. I and my associates are willing to pay the last dollar of the debt if we are given time. We want a reduced rate of interest and an extension of the time that will allow us to gradually pay off the debt which we can pay in installments. I will not agree to do something which is impossible. I will not start out to do something I already know in advance I can not do. It would not be just to myself, my associates, or the Government."

"We can only pay the debt if given time. If this request is refused, then I have no objection to the Government taking the road, the business, and the property. If the Government is determined to be an implacable creditor and take the road with its first mortgage debt, I will not make any opposition. Bonds to run one hundred years at 2 percent would be a safe, easy and fair means to letting us settle dollar for dollar with the Government."

STILL THE STAMPS POUR IN.

Gorman, The canceled one and two-cent stamps are now catalogued as worth one cent each, and she has thought of them. ANOTHER WARSHIP.

The Monadnock Is About Ready For Active Service.

San Francisco, October 22.—Steam will be raised in the monitor Monadnock Wednesday or Thursday, when the vessel will have a dock trial at Mare Island to test her machinery. The war-ship will be entirely completed and ready to put into commission within a month. The vessel is one of the most modern of the gun monitors, which are on the way from the East. The Monadnock has been building for twenty years and more, but her keel having been laid in 1874. The old Monadnock did good work during the rebellion, and Secretary Robeson, looking for a vessel to replace the old USS Monitor, found it was impossible to get appropriations for new ships, conceived the idea of having the Monadnock and other old vessels rebuilt. The expense attached to this came out of the fund for repairs. The Monadnock was put in frame at Williamsburg, N. Y., and then taken apart and the plates shipped to Mare Island on a sailing vessel around the Horn. For years the plates lay exposed to the weather. The appropriations for "repairs" were very small, and the work was delayed. Several times the plans had to be altered to conform with the money requirements, but now it is declared that the Monadnock is one of the finest and most efficient war-ships afloat, and her timbers cut into relics of former glory.

SHE WANTS HER SON.

Mrs. Minnie Carson Takes Her Boy From the Reform School.

Judge Brown yesterday afternoon awarded the custody of Earl Barr, a fourteen-year-old boy, to his mother, Mrs. Minnie Carson. Six years ago Mrs. Carson, then Mrs. Barr, was divorced from her husband, William Barr, and the custody of their child was awarded to the latter. After boarding the boy at different places for several years, Barr finally had him sent to the reform school as incorrigible. She has since married John Carson, a mechanic, and has asked that the boy be given her. The boy testified that his mother did not know until recently that he had been sent to the reform school. He testified that Barr was one of the best boys in the institution, and that she mother has known of his whereabouts, and has written to him regularly, and that from her letters he judged that she was a fit person to have him. Steps will be taken to have the boy released.

INDIANA SCHOOL OF ART.

Annual Statement To Students and Subscribers—A Prosperous Year.

The annual statement of the Indiana School of Art has been published. It contains the reports of officers for last year and statements anticipatory of the year ending November 4. Preparatory classes for young people began October 7. These are conducted by Miss Mary Robinson and Miss Tempest Tice. William Forsyth is the instructor in the advanced day and night classes. The school is managed by directors elected by the subscribers. Membership is open to any who become subscribers of $5 or more for each of three years. Students may enter at any time. Last year there were 108 pupils. The report of the treasurer, C. E. Hollander, shows a total of $1,886 receipts. This was enough to pay expenses and to leave $386 to apply to this year's demands. Some additional money has been bought, and the assets in this line now amount to about $500.

TAKEN TO ILLINOIS.

"Ollie" Farmer, Accused of Stabbing a Man, Held Here Over Night.

Sheriff Neal, of Decatur county, Ill., came to the police station last night and looked up a prisoner, Ollie Farmer, for safe keeping. He says that his prisoner stabbed a man named John Taylor at Wapella, Ill., August 3, and that he was taken to the prison at Joliet, Ill., where he was held. Farmer's parents and waited for him to come home. Farmer had been spending the evening at the home of his parents, and he was taken to the prison at Joliet, Ill., where he was held. A LANDMARK GONE.

The Old Seven Stars Tavern Near Philadelphia Burned.

Philadelphia, October 22.—The old Seven Stars tavern, in East Vincent township, Chester county, together with the stables, was burned last night. The Seven Stars tavern was one of the oldest landmarks in the country. It was built long before the Revolution, and it was a famous stopping place for travelers going from Philadelphia to Baltimore. The old tavern was the scene of many a stirring event during the revolution. It was burned last night, and the stables, which were used as a hospital, were also burned. AMUSEMENTS.

"The Cotton King" at the Park-Theatricals Elstwhere.

"The Cotton King," an English melodrama of the same order as "The World," "The Light of London," etc., opened yesterday afternoon. The play is well mounted and is presented by a capable company. The whole story is taken up with complicated machinery running at full blast. Instead of the deadly sawmill, with its revolving blades, the heroine is here fastened in an elevator shaft and the elevator run down. Down it comes, apparently to crush the girl, but at the last moment she is saved. The mechanical effects are well thought out. Two large audiences saw the play yesterday.

Empire Theatre—Russell Brothers.

The vaudeville entertainment given at the Empire Theatre this week is one of unusual excellence and variety. The acts are nearly all new, and with one exception among the best of their kind. James Russell is a unique and amusing performer, who is evidently capable of better work than he is now doing. His imitation of Sarah Bernhardt is really perfect, and his mimicry of the "Cotton King" is a novel and amusing act. Blockson and Burns, comedians, John Carroll, in character songs and sketches, Alburty and Smith, in musical comedy, and the musical acts, are all of a high order. It is not easy to understand why Fields Place, on the bill, for their act is stupid and they sing songs that should be left to the minstrels in the leading parts, closes the performance. The company will remain all week, giving two performances daily.

Primrose & West Minstrels.

Primrose & West's minstrelsy will appear to-night and to-morrow night at the Grand Opera House. The combination includes three military bands, one of them a pickaninny aggregation, and a variety of other acts. The company is composed of both whites and blacks, and is the largest numerically now on the road.

IN SCARLET AND GOLD.

Trees of the City Tipped With Vivid and Beautiful Colorings.

Ankle deep, in some streets, lie the dead leaves. The crowning beauty of the Indianapolis streets are the trees that grow on the sidewalks. Covered with the heavy snows of winter, or sprinkled with the sparkling frost of the fall, they add beauty to the desolate landscape that marks the drawing in of the last months of the year. In spring the fresh brown buds of the trees are a beautiful sight. In mid-summer when the overhead sun beats down the broad, green leaves turn the best and most beautiful of the trees. They are the homes of the birds, who early morning carols freshen the minds of men for the duties of the day.

As the year grows and the breezes of summer drive the leaves from the trees, the north, that have in a taste of winter blasts, the leaves drop and die. The streets that are lined with trees are as brilliant in color as the most beautiful of the trees. The leaves are as brilliant in color as the most beautiful of the trees. The leaves are as brilliant in color as the most beautiful of the trees.

BOARD OF SAFETY REMOVALS.

Pretexts Supplied by the Board of Health.

President Morrison, of the Board of Public Health, when reminded that the sanitary officers were appointed by the Board of Public Health, and could be removed only for recorded cause other than "pretexts," remarked with a smile that he could furnish a cause, if necessary. He said that at a meeting of the Board of Safety at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon "causes" were all in readiness. E. J. Walker was dismissed "on the ground that he was acting as a committee member in violation of Section 106 of the charter. Mr. Walker had resigned as committee member as soon as he was told that he was violating a charter provision. F. H. Hergert, meat inspector, was charged with two free use of intoxicating liquors. Joseph Farmer, who was charged with being a frequent applicant for a position on the police force, and not able to pass the physical examination, and with being a party to a previous raid on Chinese smoking opium. W. W. Wellings was charged with being over forty years old and incapacitated under the rules by age. He is about forty years old and is a dedicated man with marked efficiency. The dismissed men take these charges as mere pretexts to remove them from the Board of Safety to the effect that some of the Health Board's nominations of George Weaver, John Champion and Henry Kline were approved under the class of live stock and food inspectors. Two other men who had been nominated by the Board of Health, Charles Rogers (colored) and John McCloskey, were appointed patrolmen and were installed for duty under the Board of Health. It was stated that the rule to keep the police force as nearly as possible divided politically was followed in the appointment of Rogers, Republican, and McCloskey, Democrat. Both Dr. Morrison and Mayor Taggart declare that Rogers is a Republican in every sense, except that he voted for Taggart at the last election.

Kind To Women and Children.

Edward Davenport, a conductor on the Illinois-street electric line, died Sunday night at his home in Senate avenue, near Twenty-first street of typhoid fever. The patrons of the line had missed him for two months, though few of them knew of his absence. His sunny disposition made him well known to nearly all the regular patrons of the line. He was a kind and considerate man, and his death attracted the attention of passengers to him. He will be buried to-morrow at 10 o'clock.
